“ My memories were mostly when we were little. Uncle Fred would take us to Dairy Queen and we thought that was so cool because we never got to go there. One time he picked up my sister Debbie and me to take us to visit Granny and Grandpa in St. Louis. It was summertime and he had this little dog in the car with us and the dog got diarrhea and messed all over the back seat where we were riding. Did he stop and clean it up? Nope we just rolled all the windows down and kept on trucking. He loved to tease us. He even named his dogs after us because he thought it was funny. I'll never forget him sitting in his chair watching that little tiny tv. We've all got the duct tape stories. He fixed everything with duct tape - broken coffee table leg? Duct tape. Cracked window? Duct tape. He was definitely one of a kind.

I have to add this, he picked up 2 beagle puppies somewhere and named them Joann and Kathy. Now neither Joann or Kathy were happy about having dogs named after them. But Uncle Fred insisted on the names just to aggravate them. Years later me and Patricia had Kathy's daughter with us and went to visit Granny and grampa Pendleton. We were looking thru old photo albums and came across a picture of Joann and Kathy, the beagle pups. Me, Trish and Steve convinced Annie that before you became a person, you spent time as an animal, and that the beagle Kathy was her mom. When we took her home she went straight to her mom and announced I saw pictures of you when you were a dog! Kathy was like what? Annie said I saw pictures of you and you were a real dog. Then I had to explain why Annie thought that. Lol it was priceless. The great thing about a good joke is years later you still laugh. I remembered this as I was washing my hands earlier. I let out a crazy laugh, and Trish wanted to know if I was ok. All I could think was uncle Fred. He knew a good joke.

“ Uncle Fred was a quiet, kind soul with a quick wit and a good sense of humor. The only time i ever saw him be chatty was when him and dad got together and then i would watch the wonder of sibling love. They would laugh and talk and laugh some more. I am so grateful that Uncle Fred came to see dad a couple of weeks ago when dad got out of the hospital, even though Uncle Fred was sick himself and just got out of the hospital himself. That was just the strong kind of man he was. just awe inspiring.
One of my favorite stories i was told growing up was the one where Uncle Bud, dad and Uncle Fred went camping and Uncle Fred made breakfast. Uncle Bud asked Uncle Fred " you think you put enough pepper in the gravy?" Uncle Fred said "That's not pepper, those are ants, just eat around them." PRICELESS!!!

That IS one of my favorite stories too! I always liked listening in when they got together. Not to be nosey, but because it was the most I'd ever heard my dad talk.
