“ My son there are so many beautiful memories of you but from the day you were born to the day you were murdered I will say this you were the light in my life. In a world of darkness you may have never noticed but you lit up my whole world. You were such an easy baby and a great kid throughout your whole life. You saved my life over and over Jesse and are the highlight of my whole life baby. I miss you every single day. There is not one single day I don't wake up and listen to hear where you are before I even open my eyes and then smacked with the cold reality that I won't ever be blessed with hearing the sound of your voice saying hey mom in your butter me up way you always did before you would ask me for something. Child your loyalty was unwavering in all your 17 years I don't think there was one single time you sold your sister up the river not once. Not even when I would try to trick you into doing so. For everyone who didn't have the privilege of knowing you it's a shame and all those who did well you already know what a loss it is because for me it is total devastation. So to ever pick one memory of you wouldn't do it justice of how great you made my life Jesse. Until I see you again my sweet baby I love you more than anything in the whole world.
Your mom
