“ Linda was a very dear friend and coworker. She always offered good advice when called upon and was the voice of reason in many situations. Linda's strength of character was an inspiration to me and in many ways changed my life for the better. She was such a joyous and devoted wife, mother and grandmother, and shared her joy with those around her. She is well loved and not forgotten.

“ Linda and I were assigned a task occasionally, that took us from the office for a few hours. We talk the entire way there and back. We could solve so many issues but kept them to ourselves. We both really cherished those times. We shared secrets, special moments and our joy with our families. She retired about a month before me. Since that time, we wrote little notes back and forth. She was a private person. But we trusted whatever we talked about together, never would go anywhere else. Even though we haven't wrote or talked to each other much, I will miss her so much. Miss you Linda.
