“ Some of my favorite memories of Lois is chatting with her at the bar after the lunch crowd had left. She would start of with, "How you guys doin'?" Bob would begin joking and Lois would always get his jokes and responded with a hearty laugh. Sometimes later in the afternoon when Lois would sit at the back table wrapping silverware, I would sit with her and chat. She talked about how she was going to make chicken and dumplings. Lois said there was a couple who would travel from a ways away just to eat her chicken and dumplings. She would talk lovingly of her children and grandchildren. There was a time when a local man took Bob and I for a ride on his golf cart to show us some land by the river. When we came back, Lois was sitting by the door coming from the kitchen. She had the biggest smile on her face. During the winter months, Lois would check on our cabin to make sure everything was okay. It but our minds at ease knowing she had checked things out. I treasure the Christmas cards we would receive from Lois. She always signed them your friend. She indeed was a very good friend. Rest in peace, my friend. Mary Williamson Woodridge, IL
